Chapter 1 by Cat4055

From the title you might be able to guess what this story is about. You have to create a scenario where you can either take sayings to literally, or get the wrong idea from them.

"Sticks and stones will break my bones but words will never hurt me." said my English partner for the thousands time, he was so annoying. I finally broke a picked up a dictionary. I yelled, "How's this for words!?" before throwing it at his face. Long story short, I got expelled.

Chapter 2 by LethalPianist

"Treat others how you want to be treated!" My father yelled at me, angry at how I was expelled from school. "Why did you throw a DICTIONARY at the kid!"

I muttered a "I don't know" and went to my room. Later that night I snuck into my father's room and dragged a rag soaked with chloroform over his mouth.

"Mmmff" He gasped before losing consciousness. I then tied him up and laid him on the ground. I grabbed some hot wax and begun pouring it onto his bare chest.

"Arghhhh!" He yelled, jerked awake by the pain.

"Too bad for you, I'm gonna be the king."

Meanwhile in a New Jersey basement, a man sat in a chair, holding a gun and speaking words.

"You can discover more about a person in an hour of play than in a year of conversation."

He moved over to a wooden table in the dim light and sat down, casually flipping open the first page of a new calendar and marking off the day.

"Which would you like to begin with then?"

Chapter 4 by -

"Don't step on a crack or you'll break your mother's back!" Sis giggled as we walked the sidewalk leading home.

I ran ahead of her so she could see me clearly. Then, I slowly picked up my leg, and quietly tapped a crack, over and over. I grinned at Sis.

I ran inside the house and pushed mom in the back - hard.

CRACK

"Hey Sis, it worked!"

Chapter 5 by -

"Practice makes perfect!" My mother always said.

So I practiced and practiced, until I was the first perfect robber in history!

"Thanks mom for those words of wisdom! I learned to never to give up..."

Chapter 6 by AnimePup Paws

"Be yourself—everyone else is already taken," my father always said when I whined I didn't look good.

So, when I was older, I created a doomsday device and killed everyone on planet Earth!

"Well, I maybe, kind of, sort of may I have killed everyone but you. Now I can be WHOEVER I want! Thanks, Dad, for being such a good role model. I can't believe I didn't believe you when I was younger. You are such a wonderful/father!"

Chapter 7 by someness

"Anne, why are you wet?"

"Does it matter?"

"Yes."

"Well, remember when you used to tell me, a penny saved is a penny earned?"

"Yeah"

"Well I sorta jumped into the wishing well...for pennies..."

Chapter 8 by Dan_K

"Practice makes Perfect!" My Dad yells from, across the house.

I was struggling with a new violin piece I had gotten.

6 years later, I took that advice to good use! After countless hours of working, I am now a professional stripper!

Thanks, Dad!
